

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to thank those who gave me their time and close cooperation before departing to Mauritania, and to whom I owe the background material so difficult to find but so helpful to my own understanding: Arvonne Fraser, Paula Goddard and the staff at the Women in Development Office of the Agency for International Development; Emmy Simmons, Elsa Chaney, Martha Lewis and Carol Yulinski, whose experience was invaluable to me; Patricia McClure of New Transcentury Foundation; Pat Wetmore of USDA/OICD's Reports and Technical Inquiries Section; and, of course, my fellow workers at USDA/OICD Africa Programs for their consistent support - Kay Roosa, Jim Black, Theresa Przbylek, Ron Jones, Peter Koffsky, and especially Nancy Oakley.

I would like also to thank those who gave me such generous support in Mauritania: Mission Director John Hoskins and his staff, and especially John Grayzel and his family who were not only a source of intellectual guidance but of moral support; Allan Reed and his family, Linda Neuhauser and Mona Fikry; the RAMS project personnel; the Peace Corps staff and volunteers who provided me with many an insight and welcome at their villages; typists Magda Williams and Elizabeth (who produced the first draft of this document), and Mme. Kane and Rakia Kane who assembled the researcher reports for us; and Tekber.

Above all, I would like to thank those who worked so hard not only as translators but as cultural interpreters without whom none of our information-gathering would have been possible: Demba and his family, Ahmed Salem and his family, Dieo and her family, Mariem, Awa, Ba Khlidou and his family, Abou Kane.

Finally, I thank Julia Allen and Ross Hoff for holding down my own tent during this seasonal migration.
