

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

For his patience, interest, and counsel in the preparation of this study, the writer expresses his most sincere appreciation to his major adviser and research director of the study, Dr. Samuel Houston, Professor of Research and Statistical Methodology. He gave willingly and unselfishly of his time, and without his supervision and guidance this study could not have been completed.

The writer also wishes to thank and express his gratitude to other members of his committee, Dr. Beatrice B. Heimerl, Professor of Research and Statistical Methodology, and Dr. Barbara Mickey, Vice President and Professor of Anthropology, for their help and support in this study. Appreciation is also extended to Dr. Evelyn L. Holmboe, Professor of Business, who served as a committee member during initial phases of this study.

Gratitude is also expressed to Dr. Yupa Virawaitaya, Dr. Supasinee Supacheeva, Dr. Apa Chantharasakul, Dr. Poonsook Manomaiudom, Lizabeth M. Larsen, and Chantraporn Sockmark, for their technical and personal assistance during the study.

The writer cannot begin to express in words enough gratitude to the writer's father, Mr. Pradub Rabilwongse, and to his mother, Mrs. Umpha Rabilwongse, for their constant encouragement, moral support, and love.

The writer expresses his warmest appreciation to his brothers and sisters, Veera and Thavorn Rabilwongse, Vitaya and Ladda Rabilwongse, Aree and Renu Bunthuengjit, Preecha and Srisuda Rabilwongse, Methee and Siriphaphai Amasiri, Suthiporn and Siriphapa Sapanavin, Supot and Fujit Nabangchang, and Kriengsak Rabilwongse, for their love, understanding, support and empathy through the difficult years of graduate study.
