

Acknowledgement

The author wishes to express his profound gratitude and sincerest appreciation to his advisor, Professor Dr. Somnuk Tangtermsirikul, for his indefatigable encouragement, invaluable guidance and suggestions throughout the thesis work. Numerous fruitful discussions and continuing encouragement provided by him are sincerely acknowledged and unforgettable.

Great appreciations are conveyed to the committee members, Associate Professor Dr. Amorn Pimanmas and Associate Professor Dr. Winyu Rattanapitikon for their valuable advices, interesting in this work and devoting their valuable time to serve as members of the thesis committee.

The author also wishes to extend his appreciation and gratitude to the external committee member Assistant Professor Dr. Thatchavee Leelawat for his interesting suggestions and fruitful information, and devoting his valuable time to serve as external members of the thesis committee. Special thank and truly gratefulness are also given to Professor Dr. Toyoharu Nawa for his interesting suggestions and devoting his valuable time to serve as the external examiner.

Grateful acknowledgement are conveyed to the Thailand Research Fund (TRF) for offering the scholarship of Royal Golden Jubilee Ph.D. Program to the author for pursuing his doctoral degree at Sirindhorn International Institute of Technology, Thammasat University.

The author wishes to acknowledge Mr. Panthep Julnipitawong, Mr. Kulanan Thumasujarit, Rungrot Khunapasut and Vitaya U-varit, SIIT's students, for their help and suggestion during the experiments. Acknowledgement is also extended to the Electricity Generating Authority of Thailand (EGAT) for granting research fund and Mae-Moh fly ash used in his experimental research.

Sincere appreciations are given to all members of Building Facilities and Civil Engineering Department who taught the author and staffs who facilitated the author during studying at SIIT.

Finally, yet importantly, the author sincerely and gratefully dedicates this work to his beloved parents for their tremendous encouragement, support and sacrifice in his study and all of his life.